The most common failure in post frame buildings is trusses. Just look at what happened in Calgary this past spring. Generically designed trusses cannot accommodate every location, door configuration, or application. This is why CIA Buildings custom engineers every truss on every building. Our engineer designs a truss system that factors specific snow loads, rain load, wind loads, orientation, door layout, exposure, and application! Additionally, every truss installed by CIA Buildings is designed for snow stops (sticky roof). This way, should you ever decide to add snow stops later in the building’s life, the trusses will be able to handle the extra loads. Additionally, CIA Buildings fastens every truss directly to the post with GRK fasteners. This extra attention provides a solid connection from truss to post, making these buildings extremely durable! There are few building erectors who can honestly claim they have never had a building collapse. CIA Buildings is one of them.

LET’S TALK ABOUT TRUSSES.
